

“That their hearts might be comforted being knit together in love, and unto all riches of the full assurance of understanding, to the acknowledgement of the mystery of God, and of the Father, and of Christ, [3] In whom are hid all the treasures of wisdom and knowledge [9] For in him dwelleth all the fullness of the Godhead bodily. [10] And ye are complete in him, which is the head of all principality and power.”
- COLOSSIANS 2:2, 3, 9- 10

Amazing!

This text blew my mind when I began to prayerfully ponder over it - what really is the believer's comfort?

Haven't you also wondered, "what makes me different from an unbeliever who seems to be having life work well for them, yet they God? What really is my comfort to stand in their midst or in the midst of challenges and not lose my head?"

I won't be shocked if you have asked this question time and time again because it's the normal question of "what's in it for me?" Everyone belonging to a particular society or group wants to know where they stand and what they stand to gain when push comes to shove. What is the hope of our calling as believers?

If it is in our jobs, or spouses, kids, material possessions and educational qualifications, then what makes us different from the unbeliever who got these things too without needing to believe God? Without even reading the bible, just by experience, you and I know that these things fade with time; the job never lasts permanently, as you may have to either resign, retire out of service, or be put out of your job for many reasons in the current COVID-19 saga; also, at most, we all do grow old, so what then becomes your comfort in your spouse when all the beautiful features in them have sagged with age?

What about your fellowship with the brethren? Couldn't that be something in which to have hope? I mean, you and I know there are times when we enjoy meeting together, from the social aspects to the joint praying and even sharing of resources. Wouldn't it be right to therefore say that this is the hope?"

Well, Yes, and No!

Yes, there is a joint strengthening we get in our fellowship as believers, but then, we always do have to go back to our private lives and their peculiar challenges. So, since we do have to go back to face life alone, somehow in the sense, what becomes our hope when we are alone faced with the vicissitudes of life?

Prayerfully ponder over these questions in the face of our focal text for today. Then join me here on Friday as we look it all together

"Peace I leave with you, my peace I give unto you: not as the world giveth, give I unto you. Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid" John 14:27

For the Father loves whom He gave birth to. The Father keeps whom He loves. The Father loves whom He keeps. And the Father loves with whom He loves.

P.S: Today set your mind in prayer on Christ Jesus the Father's love keeping you. Keep yourself also in His Love, praying in the Holy Spirit for good things in the place of prayer to water men's lives. Out of this watered lives, you shall eat the good of the land.

Do, please continue to travail in prayers as the prayer chain progresses today.

Keep this strong therefore in your heart as you continue the watch today, for at least 15 minutes every 3 hours.
