A fourteen-minute-short film shot on a DSLR Canon 700D about a dark-skinned girl who is forced to audition for the the Annual Summer Theatre Production, ‘Snow White with a Twist,’ in order to gain a few extra credits to graduate college. After being rejected for most of the characters of the play, the only role left to audition for is the role of Snow White; she is left to decide whether her complexion is a valid reason to hold her back from auditioning.
