UX Design

User experience (UX) is a process of combination of various rules to form a end product to give the best experience a user needs always.

We need to consider in account the goal of the business and objective of the end product.

The main goal of the UX is to improve the quality of the interaction with the user and perception of the end product as per the related services.

With the help of UX, the UI of the end product must be useful, usable, desirable, valuable, findable, accessible and credible.

- Client

Choose any clothing brand of your liking

- Objectives

Create a responsive eCommerce website that can:

- Tell the brand's story alongside the products (VERY IMPORTANT)
- Showcase the latest products and bestsellers on Homepage
- Access to the cart throughout the site
- Show all category sections
- Allow readers to sign for an account

- Platform

We design for desktop screens, tablet and mobile screens.

- Limitations/Specifications

- Page performance (Loading time)
- Limited Screen size on mobile

- Target audience

Young males and females 25 to 35

Mobile App Design

App Design Process

First we gather requirements from client and based on the requirements we start our planing towards app design.

We first create mocks for the all required pages and than send to client for his approval or feedback.

Based on feedback or approval we goes further with revision in mock or proceeding with prototype modeling so that client can get an idea how the application will look and work after development.

We use Adobe XD to model prototype.

2D Games

Movement in games depends on whether they are 3D or 2D. 3D games allow players to move in a 3D world, meaning that players can move closer and deeper into the screen.

On the other hand, 2D games restrict player movement to a flat plane, usually left and right, but may include various other directions as well.
